

Watering

It's natural and okay to let lawns go dormant during dry periods. Turf will resume growing when weather conditions are favorable. Avoid foot traffic, mowing, fertilizer, or pesticide applications to dormant turf.

If you must water, follow these tips:

- Water when the lawn develops a blue-gray or purplish tint or when the turf lies down leaving a footprint after being walked on
- The best time to irrigate is early in the morning
- Water slowly and to a depth of 4 to 6 inches; turn off when puddles or runoff occurs
- Allow to dry between waterings

GrowingGreenLawns.org

